THE PRESIDENT'S CONDITION [illegible] CRITICAL.

[illegible] of Hope [illegible]

[illegible]

More Hopeful.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, [illegible] information was [illegible] concerning [illegible] the general condition of the president [illegible] parotid swelling, was at [illegible] by many as less hopeful than it was last night at midnight, and by others as [illegible]. Mrs. MacVeagh pronounced [illegible] and when asked this morning how long he thought this suspense would continue, replied, [illegible] knows." Postmaster-General James [illegible] telegraphed to Thurlow Weed [illegible] hope at 10 A. M. [illegible] from the surgeons [illegible]. His symptoms are no worse, and improvement not impossible."

Dr. Bliss came out of the surgeons' room at about 9:30 A. M. and telegraphed to his wife that the president was a little better than last night. In reply to interrogations he said that the pulse this morning was frequent and that the parotid swelling had broken into the right ear and was discharging through that orifice. The patient's mind was clearer and he conversed with the surgeons about the condition of the inflamed gland. He partook of food which seemed to be grateful to him, and his general condition appeared to be a little improved. The doctor expressed himself as hopeful that the swollen gland would be relieved by the discharge through the ear, and that he would pull through thereby without much change.

12:30 P. M.—At the morning dressing of the president, it was observed that the pus from the parotid swelling had found its way spontaneously into his right external auditory meatus, through which it was discharging. Some pus was also discharging through the incision made into the swelling. His wound looks as well as it has done for some time past. His pulse and temperature are at present higher than at the corresponding hour for some days. He continues to take by mouth the liquid food prescribed. Nevertheless we regard his condition as critical. Pulse 118, temperature 100, respiration 19.

1 P. M.—At 1:30 Bliss told a reporter that the president's condition this afternoon is very critical, you may say alarming, if you choose. It is as bad as at any time before. Not entirely hopeless, you understand, but very grave. He continues to take food about as yesterday, and enemata have been resumed. His system seems to bear them well, and whisky can be given that way better than through the mouth. The parotid gland is about the same. In order not to disturb him we didn't remove the poultices this noon. I don't think there is much danger now from acute blood poisoning through pus in the glands. He is more likely to die of exhaustion. It's a question of endurance. There was very little delirium to-day. Mrs. Garfield was with him all the time. His mind is decidedly clearer than last night; he talks a little more rationally, and knows what is going on around him. His mental condition is due to the anemic condition of his brain, which is not properly nourished. It is the effect of exhaustion. Clearer mind is a favorable symptom. His pulse is not higher now than at noon, which was the highest of the day. The character of the pulse has improved, and that is more important than the rate of it. Mrs. Garfield fully appreciates his condition. She has not shown the slightest weakness. If he dies it will probably be from exhaustion.

2 P. M.—The noon bulletin rather deepened than relieved the intense anxiety which prevails at the Executive Mansion. The discharge of pus from the inflamed parotid gland through the ear, which was regarded this morning as a favorable change, and one likely to afford relief, has not thus far answered expectations. The symptoms of the patient continue urgent and alarming and he seems to be gradually sinking.

4 P. M.—Dr. Reyburn reported at 4 P. M. that the condition of the president continues extremely critical. There has been no marked change for the worse since noon, but his pulse is rather more rapid and feebler, and his vitality seems very low. There are no apprehensions of immediate death, but there is on the other hand nothing as yet to strengthen hope that he will rally, which the surgeons still entertain.

6:30 P. M.—The president's condition has not changed materially since the last bulletin was issued. He continues to take by the mouth the liquid food prescribed and occasionally asks for it. Since yesterday forenoon, commencing at 11:30 A. M., the enemata had again been given at regular intervals as a means of administering stimulants as well as nutrition. They are retained without trouble. At present his pulse is 116, temperature 99.9, respiration 18.

7:30 P. M.—At this hour Dr. Hamilton thinks that the president is a shade better.

Midnight—Information from the surgeons' room is to the effect that no noticeable change has yet occurred during the last hour. Physicians apprehend no serious change during the night.

1:30 A. M.—The president has rested quietly and has slept much of the time since 11 P. M. No new unfavorable symptoms were developed to indicate any material change since the issuance of the evening bulletin.

Morning Report.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable aspect in the president's case, the city is remarkably quiet. For a week there has been a settled feeling of despair. No crowd gathered about the White House gates as at the former crisis. At the White House quiet prevails. The day bids fair to be one of terrible anxiety. The impression is that there must be a change for the better to-day or the worst consequences must ensue. All conditions now demonstrate the effects of blood poison and a decided reaction is the only hope. The secretion of pus always creates severe constitutional disturbances of the brain. The aberration of the president yesterday and last night shows the working of vitiated blood. The question is now whether this can be overcome. It will be a miracle if it does. The only hope is that the patient may retain adequate nourishment to sustain him while the poison is being eliminated. How long that may take no one can tell. The chances are against this hope. Physicians, however, say that it is within possibility, but the reaction must come soon. The president was very restless during the early part of the night, and when he did sleep it was for a few minutes only. He made no effort to talk. All members of the family kept their rooms during the night except Mrs. Garfield. She did not undress, but lay down on the outside of the bed. Soon after one o'clock she heard the doctors moving about and went into the sick room with them. They found it necessary to administer nourishment and soon retired. Mrs. Garfield remained by the bedside, until the president fell asleep and then retired to her room. Gen. Swaim relieved Miss Edson at 3 o'clock, and daylight found Mrs. Garfield sharing his vigil. She looked pale and resolute as ever, and remarked to a member of the family who asked her how the president was, "He seems no worse."

The president passed a restless night, but fortunately was unconscious or rather wandering in mind at all times. When asleep he talked incoherently but unintelligibly for the most part. Occasionally he would call upon some familiar name several times. He fancied himself in his Ohio home. His pulse and temperature continued high until near morning, when he slept at longer intervals. Mrs. Garfield remained near him at all watches of the night. At 4 A. M. finding that there was a prospect of greater rest for him she went to lie down as usual. At the Thursday evening prayer meeting last night at the Christian church was a very solemn scene. Rev. Mr. Power presided, and while he spoke of the president's condition sobs were heard in every part of the little building. Prayers were made for recovery of the president and a meeting for the same purpose took place at noon today.

A Gleam of Hope.

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—The Inter-Ocean's Washington special: Dr. Hamilton says that the physicians have a gleam of hope. This comes from the fact that the swollen gland is suppurating through the ear. A few days ago Hamilton said that by lancing the gland it was thought that the danger of suppuration through the throat could be avoided. It is presumed that this ear suppuration is regarded as a hopeful sign, because the gland has not suppurated into the throat. It is reducing nausea and strangulation.

Unsatisfactory.

The evening bulletin is very unsatisfactory, in that it gives no information that Drs. Hamilton and Bliss, who have just left the White House, said that the patient's condition at 6:30 was just a shade better. His pulse and temperature had both fallen slightly. No information regarding the wound or swelling is now obtainable.

A Question of Time.

Washington news from the sick room is of a better character. Dr. Bliss in particular is buoyant. He says that the free discharge from the [illegible] abscess is a very hopeful sign and [illegible]. He says that the general condition of the president is better today than yesterday. The president is resting in a half [illegible] state, [illegible] and wakening. He takes [illegible]. Dr. Bliss has [illegible] and is entirely despondent. [illegible] opinion and that of [illegible] the four days will elapse before the president [illegible] and that he will finally succumb to exhaustion.

The London Lancet's View.

The Lancet says that when it is [illegible]. In cases of starvation death [illegible] the original [illegible] fact that President Garfield has lost [illegible] serious import. Although [illegible] of his recovery [illegible] speedy improvement is necessary [illegible].

Secretary Kirkwood Explains the Situation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Secretary Kirkwood [illegible] one of the cabinet [illegible] the president's [illegible] we learned from the surgeons [illegible] was of such a character as to leave [illegible] room for hope. The danger [illegible] the most imminent was the danger of [illegible] general disturbance [illegible] indicate that this process [illegible].

[illegible]

Secretary Lincoln's View.

Secretary Lincoln upon coming out of the cabinet room this morning was asked what he thought of the president's condition. "Well," he said, "there is just a little encouragement this morning. From what the surgeons told us yesterday evening I received the impression that the swollen parotid gland had very much the character of a severe and dangerous carbuncle, which was enough of itself to bring a man very low, even if it did not cause his death. With this impression [illegible] left me. However, I feel again a little encouragement."

More of the Same Sort.

Secretary Brown in his note to the cabinet stated that the swelling of the neck had broken inwardly and was discharging through the mouth. This recalls Boynton's assertion that there would be no possible hope if it broke inwardly. Last night the physicians told the cabinet that unless there was a radical change for the better by time this morning there would be no hope. There has been no change except for the worse. Miss Edson left the White house early this morning, believing him dying. He was [illegible] most of the night and it was impossible to arouse him. Mrs. Garfield sat on one side of the bed and she on the other. At six o'clock the president roused a little and suggested that his wife had better go to her room and rest. She asked to be allowed to remain a while. He said, "Is it true we must be separated soon. Well, perhaps you had better stay then." He thereupon dozed again.

A Danger Avoided.

Dr. Reyburn, just before the appearance of the evening bulletin, said in his judgment the patient had not lost any ground since the middle of the afternoon. It was feared, he said, at one time to-day that the whole parotid gland would slough off in a suppurating mass, and if this should occur the shock to the patient's system would almost certainly prove fatal. Later in the afternoon, however, the appearance of the gland was more reassuring, and gave ground for the hope that suppuration would be confined within limits.

Reyburn's View.

Being interviewed this afternoon Dr. Reyburn said that he could not yet bring himself to believe that the president would die although he appreciated fully the gravity of the situation. The vitality of the patient has been very low and it was questionable whether he could hold out much longer against the depressing influence of the suppurating gland. Nevertheless, if they could tide him over two or three days and get the glandular disturbance under control he would still stand a fair chance of recovery. Speaking of the president's general symptoms Reyburn said that he should be a little quieter. He has continued to take food satisfactorily and slept a good deal in short naps. In other respects his general condition seems to be unchanged.

The President's Younger Sons.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26.—Joseph Rudolph, brother-in-law of the president, left this afternoon for Washington in company with Capt. Henry. Mr. Rudolph has been in charge of the Mentor homestead since the president has gone away, and also had the care of the president's two youngest sons, 9 and 11 years. In obedience to a telegram last night from Mrs. Garfield, these sons are left at Mentor. They were informed last evening of the president's almost hopeless condition and were greatly distressed, but did not murmur on being told they could not go to him.

Day of Humiliation and Prayer Suggested.

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Maine, Aug. 26.—The following dispatch was sent from here to-day by members of the bible conference now in session, which is composed of representatives from all parts of the United States. It is the desire of the conference that Christians in all parts of the country may communicate to the authorities at Washington their sympathy with this suggestion:

To Hon. Jas. G. Blaine, Secretary of State, Washington: The Christians assembled from many parts of the United States, in conference at this place for bible study, hereby express unceasing, prayerful sympathy with the president and Mrs. Garfield in their affliction and recognizing that all human power is insufficient for our present extremity, and that all our hope is in God, respectfully ask that you will suggest as early a day as practicable for national humiliation and prayer, that Christians of every name may more perfectly unite in recognizing and entreating Divine mercies. In behalf of the convention, (Signed), Jas. H. Brooks, St. Louis, president, W. J. Erd, Jamestown, secretary, H. A. Parsons, Toronto, E. P. Goodwin, Chicago, A. B. Simpson, New York, T. W. Harvey, Chicago, D. W. Whittle, Chicago.

Resolutions by the Latter-Day Saints.

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—At a Massachusetts district conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, or Mormons, held last Saturday in Providence, representing that church in the states of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, the following was adopted:

Inasmuch as there has been sent broadcast through the daily papers reports that the latter-day saints rejoice over the assassination of President Garfield, and as we are known to some extent by that name, and oftentimes confused with the people in Utah from the similarity of names, and consequently liable to suffer reproach; therefore,

Resolved, That we, the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, look with disdain upon and deprecate the worse than barbarous attack upon the life of President Garfield, and in common with the rest of the country, will continue to hope and pray for his complete recovery to health, for we want and wish James A. Garfield for president of these United States of America this current term.

The Vice President.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Vice President Arthur was seen at his home today at noon. He has received official bulletins in regard to the president's condition, but has not been summoned nor has he received any intimation to be in readiness to go to the capitol. Should he receive such a message he would go at once. He refused to state what he thought of the president's condition, or its requirements in relation to the vice president.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Howgate's Property.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—In the recorder of deeds' office to-day, a deed was filed from Henry W. Howgate and Cordelia Howgate, his wife, to Jas. E. Fitch and Robert C. Fox as trustees, conveying certain property in trust to secure W. W. McCullough, W. B. Moses and Motley Anderson as securities on his bond of $40,000, to appear and answer the charge of embezzlement from the U. S. government. The deed was dated August 8, and this morning at 10:30 it was deposited in the record office, from which hour it was not liable to attachment. A writ under a suit entered by Col. Cole was issued about 4:30 yesterday, and various pieces of property standing in the name of Capt. Howgate by 5 o'clock were in the hands of the marshal. It would seem, therefore, that the marshal's claims have priority, but some lawyers claim that the attachment will not hold, unless it can be shown that Capt. Howgate left the city to escape service. Appraisers under the attachment attach a valuation of $110,255 to the property seized.

Points from the Sick Room.

Up to noon to-day there has been no improvement in the president's case. In fact, it is said to be more critical. His mind wandered all the morning, and though food and stimulant was given by enema and by the mouth at intervals, he does not appear to gain strength, and it is evident that the stomach has lost its power of assimilating food. The general breaking up of cellular tissue in the inflamed gland and its discharge through the orifice of the ear has relieved the patient somewhat, but it is feared there is yet imminent danger of [illegible] or descent of pus into the body.

Dr. Boynton, when questioned this morning, said he saw no indications of improvement.

Blaine, when asked, replied though the doctors appeared to be encouraged, he could not see on what they based their hopes.

Hamilton thought there had been no improvement in 24 hours.

Absolutely no Hope.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The Post's Washington special, 3 P. M., says: "Dr. Bliss has just left the sick room for a short rest. He said there had been no change since the noon bulletin. 'But do you abandon hope?' [illegible] I asked. 'Certainly not,' replied Dr. Bliss, but his manner was not that of hope, and for the first time he was not inclined to talk. Dr. Boynton also left the White House for a short relief from watching. He was too much overcome with emotion to talk. The words choked in his throat. From another source, however, it is learned there is a [illegible] the worse. At this time the pulse has increased [illegible] and other symptoms [illegible]. They have administered [illegible] brandy and [illegible] as a stimulant."

4:30 P. M.—One of the attending surgeons has just informed a cabinet officer that there is positively no hope. [illegible]

Dr. Boynton's Opinion.

Dr. Boynton said this evening that he thought there had been a very slight improvement in the president's general condition [illegible] but up to that hour I think he had gradually failed. [illegible] for considerable time. [illegible] he could hardly live through the night.

Blaine's View.

Blaine at 10 to-night to Lowell: "While the president has made no [illegible] he is in the judgment of his physicians [illegible] feared last night. In this fact there is slight [illegible] at least a ray of hope. All [illegible] symptoms are still manifest. [illegible] He has [illegible] and he has spoken intelligently and voluntarily during the day. Mrs. Garfield has been less affected than yesterday. The expected relief to the parotid swelling from discharge through the ear has not been realized. The situation is of great gravity and danger."

The Russian War Ship Africa.

VICTORIA, Aug. 23.—The Russian steamship Africa arrived in Esquimalt harbor last evening at eight o'clock, thirty five days from Petropaulovski, which port she left on the 20th ult. She is probably the finest [illegible] war ship that ever cast anchor in these waters. Her complement of officers and men numbers 350, with a Russian admiral in command. In about a week she will proceed to San Francisco to meet the rest of the Russian fleet in the North Pacific. The Africa is one of the vessels built a few years ago by Roach, of Philadelphia, and sold to the Russian government.

The U. S. ship Rodgers arrived in Petropaulovski the day before the Africa sailed, 31 days from San Francisco, and was to have sailed on the 24th ult. on her way north in search of the missing Jeannette, with forty sledge dogs and everything necessary for Arctic travels. No news whatever had reached that port of the missing explorers.

A SOCIAL SENSATION.

A Rude Fellow Soundly Flogged by a Young Lady at West Point.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—A somewhat sensational episode is reported to have occurred at Cranston's hotel, West Point, last night. The story is that a young man calling himself Capt. Burslem, and representing himself as an officer in the British army, arrived at the hotel three weeks ago and registered as from Windsor [illegible], England. He had brought a letter of introduction from [illegible] Greenwood to President [illegible], and made many friends in New York among the Wall street [illegible], to whom he had been introduced [illegible] Miss Scofield [illegible] daughter of a [illegible] at West Point with her mother. THE LATE GEORGE DALY.

Some Incidents in the Life of this Person.

The San Francisco Call of August 24, contains the following sketch of the late George Daly (son of Rev. James Daly, and brother of William Daly of this city), an account of whose tragical death appeared in the telegraph columns of THE OREGONIAN:

George Daly was well known in this city and in various mining camps, first as a printer and newspaper writer, and of late years as a mining expert and superintendent. He was a native of Australia, but came to this country when a child. He lived for a while in Oregon, where his father, a clergyman, still resides. After coming to this city he had an interest for a while with the printing house of [illegible], and afterward had charge of the job printing department of the Alta. There he became engaged in a somewhat notable controversy with the typographical union. Although the office in which he was engaged was not involved in the printers' war, he had himself appointed a special policeman to prevent union printers from entering the office which he had previously "ratted." The feeling against him among union printers became very bitter, but when he went to Virginia City, which he did soon afterward, he engaged in an exactly similar contest. The office of the Enterprise, on which he first worked in Virginia, had considerable trouble through Daly's anti-union principles, until he left the composing room and started a job printing establishment of his own.

MINING EXPERIENCE.

About the time of the [illegible] he developed a surprising aptitude for acquiring inside points of underground workings of the mines, and thereafter was identified with mining interests, although he did not give up his printing office until years afterward. In 1871, he was engaged by Harrington and Bliss, Nevada [illegible], to take charge of the Real del Monte mine in Aurora. Later he was transferred to Bodie, where he got into a hot quarrel with the Miners' union by opposing a strike of the engineers for higher wages. When his life was threatened by the Miners' union, he became engaged in a more bitter quarrel between rival claimants for one piece of mining property. He engaged some professional fighters, desperate men who make a living in mining camps by forcibly ejecting claim-jumpers, or holding jumped claims, as they happened to be engaged. One of his men killed [illegible] a member of the Miners' union. Daly only escaped [illegible] by leaving town. He returned [illegible] and boldly faced the excitement down. He afterward went to Leadville, where his exciting contest with the striking miners will be remembered. After the strikers had [illegible] of Colorado, Daly took command of the law and order faction of the community and succeeded in quelling the turbulent strikers and restoring quiet.

[illegible]

He was a small, cool-headed, determined man, opposed strongly to all trades [illegible] and ready [illegible] to assert his [illegible]. He was [illegible] with pistol [illegible] afraid to contest with any [illegible] those weapons. He shot two [illegible] one time in Virginia City, and [illegible]. The writer saw him [illegible] in the streets of [illegible] by a [illegible] professional fighter, who having killed his man several times, considered himself a [illegible]. The challenge was accepted, and decided in the presence of an admiring crowd [illegible] street without delay in favor of Daly.

He married a sister of Drs. W. [illegible] Younger, Edward Younger and A. J. Younger of this city, and was a brother of Charles H. Daly, of the firm of Marcus C. Hawley & Co. The sudden and terrible news has prostrated Mrs. Daly, [illegible] the deceased, [illegible] many friends in San Francisco [illegible] death.

This Company is among the oldest and strongest companies in the world. Its organization dates back to 1824. Of the ninety-five companies doing business on this coast, and the 109 reporting to the New York Insurance department, in point of paid up capital it ranks No. 5, while in point of assets it ranks No. 6. Adding its subscribed capital, subject to call, amounting to over $20,000,000, which, under the stringent laws of Great Britain governing unpaid capital, as fully illustrated in the failure of the Glasgow Bank, is available to the last dollar for its liabilities, it stands at the head of all the companies doing business in America; making in all, in actual resources, $33,[illegible], and every policy issued pledges on its face, and in its contract binds its actual fire assets, every dollar of its authorized and subscribed capital of $30,000,000 to the payment of its fire losses.

...growth of our industries. But when wealth sinks itself in narrow and selfish objects, when it seeks further accumulation solely by sordid methods instead of doing it in public spirited ways; in a word when it forgets its duties, it loses its title to respect, and its centralization becomes as harmful to a community as it is actually useless to its possessor.

If, however, there are good grounds to fear serious danger to our country from concentration of wealth, then the process of combining great interests, through which millionaires are made, has already progressed to an extent sufficient to foreshadow very clearly the injuries and dangers which are to embitter the future. But it is not easy to see how a community is necessarily injured by the enrichment of its citizens, if this wealth be acquired in an honorable manner. The desire to increase earning power and actual possessions is the great incentive to all forms of useful exertion; and in this age poverty is often largely due to an absence of such ambition, while its vigorous activity is frequently the precursor of wealth. To say that no man should be allowed to grow rich is equivalent to declaring that the motives for extra exertion and rigid economy should be destroyed. Such a condition of affairs exists to a great extent in countries where anarchy or aggressive despotism prevails, and one of its natural fruits is a degree of misery and deprivation of which few of our citizens can form a faint conception. It is only when many persons earn or possess money or commodities greatly exceeding their absolute requirements that the main body of the population can be reasonably well assured against famine and lack of fuel, clothing and shelter.

Again the wonderful new agencies, such as steam-power and labor-saving machinery, which have enormously increased the productive capacity of highly civilized countries have thereby created facilities unknown in former years for enlarging the supply of legitimate wants, and for enabling many thousands of persons to increase their incomes and to acquire moderate wealth, as well as to increase the number of millionaires. It should be remembered that the agencies for producing wealth have multiplied quite as rapidly as the number of large fortunes; and this advance has been accompanied with the acquisition of large amounts of capital by a comparatively small number of persons, a very great increase in the number of citizens who earn large salaries, or make liberal profits and amass considerable fortunes, and an improved style of living, which pervades the entire community and enables many of the mechanics of 1881 to enjoy more luxuries than monarchs could procure a few centuries ago, with the wealth of kingdoms. It is hard to conceive an effective plan for arresting either of these outgrowths of modern civilization which will not destroy them all by reproducing semi-barbaric conditions. It should, however, constantly be the aim of citizens, courts and legislators to prevent men or corporations from acquiring wealth by dishonest methods, or by resorting to any unjust practices which are clearly prejudicial to the public welfare. If the rights of the body politic are fully protected in this manner the general welfare will be promoted by the enrichment of the greatest possible number of citizens.

As great fortunes grow up in our own state we shall hope to see them managed with a farsighted liberality, not only for the profit of their owners, but for public ends. It is not unjust to say that less has been thought hitherto of the responsibilities of wealth in our Pacific states than of its rights, the protection due to it, and its claims for further accumulation. Probably this grows very much out of the fact that most of those who originally came to this coast came avowedly for acquisition of money rather than for permanent residence; and this led to a habit which has not yet been outgrown. For habits formed during the years of earlier manhood usually remain through life; and on this coast more even than elsewhere, men years ago set money-making before themselves as the great and only object of endeavor, and dropped into ways from which it is hardly to be expected that they will ever change. Hence wealth accumulated here seldom goes into new enterprises. There, by it loses opportunities, and fails to do many things that might reasonably be expected of it.

THE RIVER CHANNELS.

During the shipping season just commencing, as during the fall and early winter of last year, the Columbia and Willamette rivers will be impassable for loaded vessels at two or three points between Portland and the sea. The old dredger, a second-rate affair of limited capacity, which for several years did spoon service on the bars, has been dismantled and a large boat of the first class, now in process of construction, will be put on in her stead. At its last session, congress appropriated $45,000 to be expended in building a dredger and in improving the channels of the lower Willamette and Columbia rivers. By using all available parts of the old boat and her machinery in the new, the cost of the latter, when ready for service, will be $20,100. Deducting this sum from the main appropriation of $45,000 there is remaining for operating expenses of the dredger, for examination of the river and for repairs to existing improvements, which consist of a series of dykes at the mouth of the Willamette, $24,900, amply enough for these various purposes. The new boat will no doubt do good service, but it is impossible to keep the channel clear for the passage of large loaded ships with one dredger, no matter how large its capacity nor how constantly it be worked. If we are to rely upon this method of keeping the rivers open we must have two or more [illegible] built and maintained in service during the low water season. [illegible] $50,000 [illegible] the one now building [illegible] the annual [illegible] operating them [illegible] $50,000. [illegible] But instead we have one dredger and a small appropriation and [illegible]

[illegible] ...dredged to ... the Columbia and Willamette rivers.

In [illegible] of the Columbia and Willamette [illegible] has been the subject of many [illegible] we do not remember to have heard of a plan which [illegible] better on its face than one suggested by Mr. [illegible] Gates, [illegible] of the O. R. & N. Co., a practical and thorough man. Mr. Gates proposes to employ a tug [illegible] specially for this service, in scraping the bars with a system of drags during the high stage of water, when the current is rapid and strong and would carry the disturbed sediment and sand with it to the ocean. Such a process occasionally repeated he thinks would scoop out the bars and maintain at all times a deep, free channel. The same method applied to the Columbia bar would, in the opinion of Mr. Gates, accomplish just the results of deepening and straightening the channel so much desired.

Opposed to this plan is the theory that the thread of maximum velocity in a water current is at a proportionate distance below the surface and that the scour of the river bed is greater during low than high stages of water. But this does not affect the merit of the scheme. If the current at the river bed be strongest at low water then scrape with the drags as above suggested, at low water. We should like to see the result of experiments in this effort.

The Vicksburg (Miss.) Chronicle, (bourbon democrat) expects a very strong opposition to its party in that state. It says: "It is now certain that our recently formed state ticket will have a most formidable enemy to meet. We should keep in mind the fact there is no good reason for believing the republican party is virtually dead in this state, and that it is impossible again to rally it, or that a majority of the voting population at the present moment are in full and hearty sympathy and alliance with the democracy."

The Denver and Rio Grande and the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroads have arranged to build together the Burlington and Missouri railroad into Denver. The end of the Burlington and Missouri road is now about 200 miles from that city. It is also said that the two companies above named have formed a close alliance, and will make the Utah extension in common to Ogden, there connecting with the Central Pacific road, thus making another through line from Chicago to San Francisco by way of Denver.

The last heard of French, the railroad auditor, who paid us a visit some months ago he was lost amid the incalculable assets of the Central Pacific railroad. The Philadelphia Times learns that an expert is now to be sent to California to find the place where Mr. French went in and take observations along his route and see how the two accounts tally. It must be capital fun to audit a rich railroad when a week's work makes a man independent of a $10,000 salary.

Hartmann is beginning to find out, as the Chicago Tribune remarks, that the blowing up of railway trains is not such a fascinating pursuit as he supposed. He fled from Russia to France, from France to England, from England to the United States, and from the United States to Canada. The jumping off place is somewhere in Canada. After Hartmann has been in Canada a short time he will long for a haven of rest even in Siberia.

Nothing in the reports from the president furnishes any additional ground of hope. All that can be said is that he still lives, and that while life remains no case can be absolutely given up. The telegraphic reports furnish all obtainable information as to his condition.

SATURDAY MORNING

A GEM OF ART.—[illegible] Mauss's Palace of Art, a beautiful [illegible] painting [illegible] Miss Lolli O'Conner, [illegible] Mrs. E. Springer painted the portrait [illegible] Mrs. O'Conner, who is highly pleased with it, and will leave the painting on exhibition until October, when she purposes taking it east.

TEACHERS' EXAMINATION. There were 92 applicants for certificates at the examination which was held in this city on the 23d and 24th inst., by Mr. E. Allen Marram, county school superintendent. The written examinations are now in the hands of the superintendent, and the result will not be known until about next Wednesday.

LECTURE AT OREGON CITY.—Lieut. Fred Schwatka will deliver a lecture at Pope's Hall, Oregon City on Tuesday evening next, August 30th. In addition to his extensive experience as a traveler, Lieut. Schwatka has the reputation as a fluent and interesting speaker.

EXAMINATION OF PUPILS.—There will be an examination of pupils for admission to the High school Thursday, 29th inst., in Room J, Park building. It is very important that all who expect to enter should be present at that time.

NEW MUSIC.—Mr. Simon Harris has placed on the table two new pieces of music, "Darling Daisy O' Dundee," song and chorus, and "The Dear Old Emerald Banner," song and chorus. Both pieces are published by Mr. Harris.

C. T. S.—The meeting of the Open Temperance society at Y. M. C. A. hall this evening will be addressed by Mr. W. Cary Johnson of Oregon City. There will be singing by Mr. Bailey and others.

STEAMERS ARRIVED.—The steamers "State" from San Francisco and the Los Angeles from Sitka and way ports arrived here last evening.

BRIEF NOTES.

Louis XI to-night.

Dust has disappeared.

Three ocean steamers now in port.

New season will open this evening.

The "State" and Los Angeles have both arrived here.

The Oregon crossed out yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

A genuine thunder storm passed over the city yesterday afternoon.

The "State" brought 45 canvas sacks of mail, two pouches and four registered sacks.

The new engine house for Couch Engine No. 3 will be ready for occupancy by the first of September, when the company will move in.

The Chinese mission night school will commence next Monday evening at [illegible] o'clock, at their chapel on Fifth street, between Alder and Morrison.

The Sheridan combination had a very pleasant trip, Miss Rose Keene and Mr. Mark Thall being the only ones suffering severely from seasickness.

The funeral of the late Mrs. C. E. Waller took place yesterday afternoon and was largely attended. Rev. Mr. McCor[illegible] conducted the funeral service.

Mr. J. P. Howe, [illegible] of the Sheridan combination, [illegible] an excursion from Oregon City for Thursday evening next to witness the performance on that night.

The Rev. Ed. Doerling of Illinois will arrive in this city by the next trip of the Columbia with the intention of permanently locating here. He is a minister of the Evangelical Lutheran church.

AMUSEMENTS.

ARRIVED.—Mr. Wm. E. Sheridan, the eminent tragedian, and company arrived on the "State" last evening. The company consists of the following members: W. E. Sheridan, Miss Rose Keene, Miss Shington, Miss Davenport, J. R. Grismer, Willie Simms, Robt. Eberle, E. Thayer, Chas. Matthews, Louis Belmore, Harry Morgan, Chas. Melville, Jno. Hall, J. McCullough, Mr. Mark Thrall manager. The company is said to be one of the strongest which has visited Portland for some time. Several members are old favorites in Portland. The play tonight is Mr. Sheridan's great specialty, Louis XI. The prospects for the season are certainly flattering, as fully three quarters of the lower part of the house is already reserved.

THE DRUNKARD.—To-morrow night at Masonic Hall Dr. Truesdell will deliver the first of a series of Sunday evening lectures to ladies and gentlemen on "The Causes, Effects and Cure of Intemperance." Mr. Kimle the actor, and his little boy, will be introduced at the close of the lecture, in their thrilling act entitled "The Drunkard." No more affecting scene has ever been presented to portray the horrors of drunkenness. "Music and song" each Sunday night. Admission 25 cents.

HOUSE HELP.

There is a great hue and cry abroad about the Chinese and their hold on the housekeeper. Why is this? Simply because there is a great scarcity of girls for the kitchen and housework—of a competent class, I mean. There are places for girls willing to work and learn, in addition to those who are competent at wages from $8 to $15 per month. Good girls command from $15 to $20. What is most wanted are girls from $12 to $18 to work in small families. Girls who are willing can always find places, and in most instances to fill the positions held by Chinamen. Eastern girls should note this. There is room for hundreds in Oregon. Even good Chinamen are in demand.

HOUSEKEEPER.

VANCOUVER NOTES.

[REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

VANCOUVER, Aug. 26, 1881.

Gen. Miles is expected to reach Spokane Falls on Saturday evening, homeward bound.

Major Samuel T. Cushing, C. S., returned to Vancouver on Thursday from a trip to Coeur d'Alene upon business connected with his department.

Mr. Nicholson's little daughter had the misfortune to fall from the government dock into the river yesterday afternoon, as the steamer Fleetwood was leaving the wharf. By the timely assistance of Mr. S. P. Goodwin and her brother Lawson, she was rescued from a watery grave.

SOCIETY.

[illegible] notwithstanding the fact that the weather has at no time been discomfortable at any time, the annual hegira to the various inland watering places, to the seaside and to mountain resorts has been quite as general as at any time since the pioneer custom of staying at home through all seasons gave place to the pleasant fashion of going summering. Our record from week to week has given brief account of the outgoing and incoming of these pleasure seekers, and a few weeks hence will see all snugly domiciled at home equally happy in the recollection of summer pleasures, and busy in planning winter festivities. The following is our usual resume for the week.

[illegible]

SOCIAL EVENTS.

Last Saturday evening a very pleasant social party was given at the residence of Mr. Sol. Swabe, [illegible] of Walla Walla in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John Leary of Seattle.

The latest betrothal announcement is that of Miss Miriam [illegible] and Mr. Mose Barah, both at present residents of Pendleton. The young lady is a sister of Mrs. Lehman Blum.

J. F. Curtis, master mechanic O. R. & N. Co., The Dalles, is soon to depart for England on a brief visit. A farewell entertainment will be given by his friends at the opera house in that city next Monday evening.

On Tuesday next, the 30th day of August, there is to be an excursion to Oregon City from Vancouver and Portland, given under the auspices of Ellsworth Post, Grand Army of the Republic, Vancouver. The steamer Lurline has been chartered for the occasion.

On Friday evening of last week, the Misses Caples gave a farewell dinner to Bishop Harris, at their residence on Taylor street. The occasion was a very interesting one to those present. Many of the ministers of the church and friends of the bishop were among the invited guests.

On Monday evening a reception in honor of Gen. Wheaton was given by Col. W. H. Effinger at his residence, corner Eleventh and Washington streets. The company was large and the entertainment throughout delightful. Gen. Wheaton left for his post in Idaho Tuesday morning.

The several lodges of the A. O. U. W. of this city and East Portland have in contemplation a monster celebration at a date yet to be fixed, but probably soon after the Mechanics' fair, as it is expected to secure the use of the pavilion for the purpose. The programme will be extensive, varied and interesting.

The marriage of Mr. Charles Prim, son of Judge Prim, and Miss Effie Bybee, daughter of Sheriff Bybee of Jackson county, was celebrated at the home of the bride's father in Jacksonville on Thursday, August 18th. The guests embraced the elite of Jackson county, and the presents were numerous and costly.

A pleasant social and card party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Mackenzie at their residence, Hall street, Thursday evening. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Mann, Mr. and Mrs. B. Weeks, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Pittock, Miss Thornberry of the Dalles, Miss Ida Johnson of Massachusetts, Miss Fallows, Mr. [illegible], Mr. Chas. Hale and Mr. F. Churchill.

The Enterprise says a grand [illegible] concert show was given at Wilhoit Springs last Saturday evening, with the following artists: [illegible], Mrs. Nora Clark, [illegible], J. R. Sheppard, [illegible], Mrs. Tom Miller, Mrs. Col. White and [illegible], ballads, and the brass band orchestra. The performance was very good for the time taken in preparing it. The dancing of Mrs. Tom Miller and Mrs. Col. White was very pleasing.

Col. R. N. Batchelder, U. S. A., Dept. Q. M. [illegible] gave a dinner party at his residence, No. 737 [illegible] street, in honor of Representative and Mrs. Pound of Wisconsin. The occasion was a brilliant one, says the Report, the host [illegible] of the most affable of gentlemen, the conversation animated, and the cuisine of the best. Among the guests invited to meet Rep. and Mrs. Pound were Maj. General and Mrs. M. [illegible] well [illegible] and Mrs. Ramsay, Gen. Young, Prof. Langley and Capt. Michaelis, U. S. A.

On Monday night last about sixty of the young lady and gentleman friends of Miss Annie [illegible] assembled at Judge Davis' spacious parlors and proceeded in a body to Miss Annie's residence, corner of Fifth and Salmon, where that lady was genuinely surprised. The company was a very social one and passed a very pleasant evening, games, music and social intercourse being the ruling features. At 12 o'clock a fine lunch was served, and the party broke up in excellent humor. Miss Kate Davis and Ray Simon were the organizing and ruling spirits of the party, and made a complete success of it.

The Young Men's Catholic Dramatic and Musical Society of this city gave an entertainment at their hall on last Tuesday evening, which was attended by a very good audience. The programme rendered consisted chiefly of comic specialties, most cleverly executed by Messrs. Malony, Jordan, Gladding, McNamara, O'Hara and Duggan, appropriate songs by H. Cass and P. Collins; a recitation by P. Bentgen, and last, but not least, a song, "Is there no hope for Ezra"—Professor Bray's latest composition—by Miss Aggie Hanley, who was deservedly encored. Mr. H. Cass was also favored with an encore. The whole was interspersed with well-rendered overtures by the orchestra—Messrs. Milwain, Clements and Master Dominic Zan. Mr. Ed. Hanley accompanied the solo singers, and Miss Katie Stuart accompanied Miss Hanley on the piano.

About 30 couples, composed of the best people of East Portland with a number from this side, met at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Gillespie on J street, East Portland, at about 9 o'clock last evening, the occasion the wooden wedding or fifth anniversary of the marriage of the host and hostess. Shortly after the party assembled, all repaired to Neppach's hall, where others joined the throng and the mirth and sociability of the hour began. All who were in attendance had brought some kind of present and the aggregate made a fine showing, embracing every thing made of wood from a tooth pick up to a bath tub, many of the presents being rare and valuable. The supper, a conspicuous feature of the evening, was prepared under the supervision of Mrs. Wm. Welch, who did herself great credit in its preparation. Altogether the affair was a most pleasant one. Our Jenkins pro tem had not time to procure a list of guests or their presents.

THE DOLLAR SALES.

Ackerman & Co. to-day present another [illegible] city at their great dollar sale, which continues with unabated success. Ten crates of majolica ware, of direct importation, were received by the last steamer, and will be this morning displayed in the various departments of the Dollar Store. Many of the articles are of new and unique design, and should be seen to be fully appreciated. This, with the many other attractions at the Dollar Store which are to be presented to-day, will greatly add to the general interest awaken[ed] over the sales being made at the [illegible] Dollar plan. Five hundred [illegible] pattern [illegible] are not the least of the attractions which find special favor in the eyes of the ladies.

PORTLAND, Aug. 24, 1881.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

At 6:35 P. M. Sunday, 21st, whilst coasting close in under lee of land for smooth water—blowing hard from N. W. with a heavy swell in the offing—on a very high peak about 8½ to 9 miles W. N. W. from S. W. point of Shelter cove, I observed some one making heliographic signals with a very powerful mirror. I immediately answered one of the large mirrors from a state room and flashed the official number of the ship, and not having a corresponding to the parties on the peak, could nothing further consequently, am unable to state whether they wished to communicate or not. And in the absence of that knowledge was not justified in stopping the ship. And I herewith make known the fact to you, leaving it to your discretion to deal with this communication as you deem best. My own impression is, that it might be a party of topographical surveyors signaling, whether in want of anything or for amusement I cannot say. The distance was too great to distinguish people, nor could they distinguish flag signals and besides with the breeze then blowing the flags would have blown to ribbons before they could be hoisted to mast head. I have the position of the peak (approximately) latitude 40 deg. 3 min., at sea north; long. 124 deg. 5 min. 30 west.

Yours respectfully, [illegible]

TESTIMONIAL OF RESPECT.

WHEREAS, It has pleased God in His divine wisdom to remove from our midst Miss [illegible], one of our most efficient coadjutors in the cause of education, and one who was deeply and sincerely loved by us for her many inestimable virtues; [illegible]

WHEREAS, We, the teachers of the [illegible] East Portland, desire to [illegible] express our sympathy to the bereaved parents, sisters and brothers of her whose memory we shall ever revere; Therefore be it

Resolved, That it is but a just tribute [illegible] to say that in recording her removal from among us we mourn for one who was in every way worthy of our love and esteem, and that in her death we have lost a devoted worker in educational interests, the purity of whose influence [illegible]

Resolved, That we tender our sincere [illegible] with the family of the deceased in the dispensation [illegible]

Resolved, That this tribute [illegible] testimonial of our sympathy and sorrow be published in the daily papers, and a copy be forwarded to the family of our deceased sister teacher by the secretary of this committee.

[illegible] MORNING [illegible]

THE BATTLE WITH DEATH.

CRITICISMS ON THE MANAGEMENT OF THE PRESIDENT'S CASE.

His Relapse Attributed to Bad Surgery and Incompetent Management of His Diet.

[illegible] that there should be an increased temporarily [illegible] The respiration is also beginning to show the same debility that produced the abscess [illegible] loss of power chiefly of the pneumogastric nerve, which is the most important nerve of the body, and the one chiefly concerned in circulation and respiration.

It is the opinion of one of the constant attendants upon the president that thus far stimulants have been administered in larger doses than his stomach in its debilitated condition can stand. Quinine has also been freely administered washed down by small quantities of brandy, which has not only been distasteful to the president, but apparently prejudicial in its effect. The lime water and milk which have also been freely given to the president, to quiet his stomach, seem not only to have lost their palatable effect, but have become positively an irritant. The progress of the president's case from the beginning was a fruitful source of discussion to-day. It was not until Drs. Hamilton and Agnew had made an examination of the president's wound on the fourth of July that they learned from two of the physicians present that the examination made on the 2d of July five hours after the wound was received that the eleventh rib was badly fractured and that probably the tenth rib had been broken and that the spicula was very conspicuous when he inserted his finger into the wound. This seems to be a revelation of Dr. Hamilton for what reason cannot now be stated, but the fact remains, nevertheless, that neither one of them took any notice of it or spoke of it until after they had returned to their respective homes. On the 23d of July, when he had the rigor, and Drs. Hamilton and Agnew were sent for in great haste and arrived here in the afternoon, it was determined that a pus cavity had formed and that it would be necessary to open it in order to allow the pus accumulated to be discharged. This was performed July 24, and was a simple matter, as Dr. Agnew said, but with the pus were discharged several pieces of the shattered rib. Better evidence of the fact that could not possibly have been given, and yet no attempt was made either to remove the other fragments or search for them to make incisions larger so that the broken bone might be removed, or in any way to remove them. In this connection comes the president's weak stomach and his chronic inability to digest certain articles of food, of which fact the attending and consulting physicians knew nothing up to the time of the relapse, July 23d. He had been given food which challenged the tone of his stomach, articles which he certainly would not have partaken of if he had been a well man. With his food were given him liquors, stimulants in greater quantities than he was accustomed to take, and between stimulants and improper diet a naturally weak stomach was made more weak and irritable. Only after the operation of July 24 was great care observed in his diet. He was now allowed to take nothing but beef juice, beef extract, and toast thoroughly made spongy by milk or beef juice, and milk with lime water in it to ward off anything like nausea. In the meantime a wound fifteen inches in length was continuing to freely discharge pus, and in such quantity as to alarm the physicians, for the reason that if he could not take solid nourishment with this drain upon his vitality, it would be only a question of time when an exhausted system would so weaken the gastric nerves that he would not be able to take any food at all. At each dressing of the wound it was officially announced that the flow of pus was abundant and laudable. It does not seem to have occurred to the surgeons, either at the operation of July 24th or the more recent operation, August 8th, to have removed the irritating causes which secreted so much pus and which has been so great a drain upon his vitality. With these facts in view it is almost a unanimous opinion to-day that the president's present condition is

and to the bad management of the case as to diet. His weak stomach is but the result of a debilitated body, and he owes that debility to the excessive drain of pus from the wound, and which it is now very clear has been caused by the presence of uncrossed or fractured portions of the rib in the vicinity of the wound. On the 10th of August, two days after the operation, Dr. Hamilton, in a verbatim report of an interview, said, "You may add, if you please, that in my opinion the bullet is lying very quietly in its present position, and that the graver portions of the symptoms which the president's physicians have had to deal with have been caused by the comminuted fracture of the rib." Perhaps no word could more fully express a surgeon's idea of the gravity of the case. What Dr. Hamilton meant was the eleventh rib, or portions of it, had been reduced to minute particles, each one itself sufficient to cause an undue secretion of pus. But when it is taken into consideration that this comminuted bone, this fine powder, was distributed through the wound, it will be readily seen that had the surgeons at the operation on July 24th taken pains to remove the broken fragments and clear the wound of the debritus, that condition which Dr. Hamilton himself confessed would not have existed on the tenth day of August. The systems now developed are those resulting from the fragments of the ribs that have been driven in the connective tissue between the viscera and the wall of the abdomen, producing abscesses. Suppuration has been going on inside of the ribs produced by the spicula of bone, and all the indications now are that septic infection has culminated. The peculiarity of spicular infection is a high pulse rate and gastric irritability. It is a well known fact in medical circles that in all wounds attended with septic infection, irritability of the stomach is an ordinary symptom, so that the present inability of the president to retain food cannot be attributed to dyspepsia. To feed a man in his condition with raw onions and vinegar would be contrary to all known laws of physiology. He

CANNOT ASSIMILATE IT.

Debility which affects the voluntary muscles also involves the involuntary, of which the stomach and heart are examples. The heart and viscera sympathize in all cases of debility. When a man is very ill and prostrated he does not want anything to eat, because in digestion there are two elements—gastric juice to dissolve and mechanical motion. People are treated every day who are defective in stomach power. They have plenty of gastric juice, but the mechanical motion is wanting. In this condition of things the solid and undigested food that has been given could not have been regarded as proper. Of course all this has had a tendency to weaken his stomach, but now the stomach is in sympathy with the debilitated condition of his entire system and lacks the power to grind or to digest the food, or to hold so much as water. In his reduced condition the physicians have resorted to enemata, which is principally beef juice, with pepsin in a condition to be readily assimilated through the membranes of the bowels, and which having assimilated will prolong life for a considerable period. But that enough nourishment can be administered daily to supply the natural waste of tissue, enough vitality for the free discharge of pus from the wound and besides add a reserve to the nerve force of the body, is more than any person acquainted with the nature of enemata could possibly expect. And it is impossible or regarded as impossible in his weakened condition to assimilate undigested food in such a quantity as will renew a hope of life.

GUITEAU.

Precautions against Mob Violence.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Adj't. Gen. Drum this afternoon issued stringent orders to the officer in charge of the troops stationed about the jail where Guiteau is confined. The officer was required to report on duty the full complement of men under his command, instead of leaving them carelessly lounging about, with only two or three on active duty, as has been the case during the last four or five weeks since the first excitement was passed. The captain was also directed to keep his men under arms all night, ready to resist any attack that might be made on the jail. The reason for this precaution is that, in the last forty-eight hours, many respectable people have said that if the president dies no jail will be strong enough to hold Guiteau. Something of this feeling was shown this morning, when a wealthy and respectable gentleman of this district, a former officer in the confederate service, said that he was one of a number of men who had made up their minds to take Guiteau out of jail in case the president should die.

A gentleman who has seen Guiteau

YAMHILL MAIL SERVICE

[illegible] the star service route [illegible] to St. Joseph [illegible] 1881, will be reduced between [illegible] to three times a week [illegible] Dayton [illegible] a tri-weekly affair. Daily papers would be substantially worthless as dailies under any such an arrangement. Again, the express office at Dayton [illegible] and the daily mail from Portland entirely removed. It occurs to this community that the postal authorities are quite derelict in their [illegible] so seriously affecting the business relations of so many people.

A little contemptible catering to a popular cry about "star route swindles," would appear to be of the essence of his new retrenchment.

We trust that the Oregon authorities will use their influence to counteract or recall this postal order. While retrenchment is wise, it ought not to be at the expense of the county seat of Yamhill county, as well as of our sister town of Dayton and surrounding country. Yours respectfully,
